Stolt-Nielsen*: Lessons Learned and Implications for Amnesty Applicants and Other Parties in Criminal Antitrust Investigations

A Brown Bag Program to be held

Tuesday, February 26, 2008
12:30-2:00 p.m. EST (Telephone)

Stolt-Nielsen is the only case in which the Department of Justice has revoked a company's leniency for failure to meet the conditions set forth in its agreement with DOJ under the Corporate Leniency Policy. The DOJ subsequently indicted Stolt and two of its executives. In late 2007 motions to dismiss the indictment were granted and DOJ has recently determined not to appeal the ruling. Our panel, which includes the Antitrust Division official in charge of criminal enforcement and experienced defense counsel, will comment on the implications of Stolt-Nielsen for amnesty applicants, other companies, and executives embroiled in criminal antitrust investigations going forward.
