

DOUGLAS H. GINSBURG

Biographical Details

Douglas H. Ginsburg is Chief Judge of the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit, to which he was appointed by President Reagan in 1986. He is also Distinguished Adjunct Professor of Law at George Mason University School of Law, Visiting Lecturer at the University of Chicago Law School, and Distinguished Visiting Scholar at New York Law School.

Judge Ginsburg previously served as a Professor of Law at Harvard Law School; as Director of the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs, Office of Management and Budget; and as Assistant Attorney General in charge of the Antitrust Division of the United States Department of Justice.

Judge Ginsburg is a graduate of Cornell University and of the University of Chicago Law School ('73), where he was the Articles Editor of the Law Review. He is a member of the American Economic Association, the American Law and Economics Association, and the Mont Pelerin Society. Judge Ginsburg serves on the Advisory Boards of: Competition Policy International; the Journal of Competition Law and Economics; the Journal of Law, Economics and Policy; the Supreme Court Economic Review; the Law and Economics Center at George Mason University School of Law; and the Jevons Institute for Competition Law and Economics, Faculty of Laws, University College London; as well as the Harvard Journal of Law and Public Policy; and the University of Chicago Law Review.

He is the author most recently, of "Antitrust Decisions of the Supreme Court, 1967-2007," Comp. Pol. Int'l (2007) (with L. Brannon); "Determinants of Private Antitrust Enforcement in the United States," Vol. 1, No. 2 Comp. Pol. Int'l 29 (2005) (with L. Brannon); and "Comparing Antitrust Enforcement in the United States and Europe," 1 J. Comp. Law & Econ. 427 (2005).