

Jeffrey A. LeVee

Jeff LeVee is a partner of Jones Day in the Firm's Los Angeles office, where he serves as coordinator of Jones Day's California antitrust and competition law practice. He is also the Hiring Partner of the Los Angeles office. His practice focuses on all aspects of antitrust and competition law, including both litigation and counseling, and other forms of complex litigation, including health care litigation. His clients include health care providers, media companies, pharmaceutical companies, retailers, Internet companies, and various manufacturers. Mr. LeVee has lectured on legal topics relating primarily to antitrust and class action litigation.

Mr. LeVee is a member of the American Bar Association and presently is the chair of the Trial Practice Committee of the Antitrust Section. Previously, he was co-chair of the Section Spring Meeting and a member of the Section Council.

Mr. LeVee earned his J.D. cum laude in 1984 from Northwestern University, where he was an editor of the Northwestern University Law Review. He earned his B.A. magna cum laude in 1981 from Duke University. He is admitted to the bars of the California and Illinois, all of the district courts in those states, and the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals.