

Gail F. Levine is an Assistant General Counsel at Verizon Communications Inc., where she handles a wide array of high-tech, intellectual property, and competition policy strategy issues.

Until last year, Gail was an attorney advisor to the Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, Deborah Platt Majoras. She advised the Chairman on antitrust and intellectual property issues. Before joining the Chairman's office, Gail was the FTC's Deputy Assistant General Counsel. She was a significant contributor to the 2003 FTC report on intellectual property and innovation, and she co-authored many other FTC reports on antitrust and high-tech issues. Gail is also a vice-chair of the Computer & Internet Committee of the ABA's Antitrust Section.

Before joining the FTC, Ms. Levine was a trial lawyer in the Civil Division of the U.S. Department of Justice. Ms. Levine clerked for Judge Royce C. Lamberth of the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia and Judge Patrick E. Higginbotham of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit. She graduated magna cum laude from Harvard Law School, where she was an editor of the Harvard Law Review.
