

ABA Section of Antitrust Law 2009 CLE Conferences

---

57th Spring Meeting

March 25–27, 2009

JW Marriott • National Press Club • Washington, DC

Register Today: <http://www.abanet.org/antitrust/at-spring/09/2009.html>

This year's Spring Meeting of the ABA Section of Antitrust Law will once again bring you the latest developments both here and abroad. These are changing times—a new administration, the economic uncertainty, and new or revised competition laws in many countries. What do you need to know more about? The Spring Meeting will have the answers. Whatever your competition law interest, you will find a wide range of sessions to meet your needs. Check out the program by looking at the sessions and speakers listed in the brochure. No other one-stop shop can bring you up to date and sharpen your skills as well or at such a reasonable price. Competition concerns of all types will be addressed—cartels, mergers, dominance, counseling, litigation skills and issues, intellectual property interface, privacy, and consumer protection. Meet your CLE needs, including two sessions of ethics credits.

Consumer Protection Conference

June 18–19, 2009

Georgetown University Law Center • Washington, DC

Register Today: <http://www.abanet.org/antitrust/at-programs/cpc-09/cpc-09.html>

The 2009 Conference will coincide with the Section's release of the much anticipated treatise, Consumer Protection Law Developments, and will be led by the practitioners responsible for developing consumer protection law in the United States today. This conference will bring together the leading government enforcers, public interest lawyers, and private practitioners to discuss consumer protection issues of importance. Topics that will be addressed include: protecting privacy and securing information, managing risks in new technologies, litigating cases of deception and unfairness, auditing compliance programs, advertising to children, and many others. The historical perspective and outlook for the future will be of considerable value to attorneys who already practice in this exciting area.
