Rachel Brandenburger specialises in EU and UK antitrust and regulatory law and works in the Brussels and London offices of Freshfields Bruckhaus Deringer. She is the co-head of the firm's global telecoms, media and technology (TMT) regulatory group.

She has led many cases in front of both the European Commission and the antitrust and sector-specific authorities in the UK and the rest of the EU. She has also led cases in front of the European Court of Justice and advised on UK High Court judicial review proceedings against some of the UK sector regulators.

She has advised TMT clients in relation to a number of ground-breaking mergers and strategic alliances; on complaints against anti-competitive practices; on privatisations; on the creation and flotation of companies; on UMTS and other auctions; and in relation to licensing, interconnection, pricing and other antitrust and regulatory issues.

Rachel speaks and writes regularly on antitrust and regulatory issues. She was a contributor to the ABA's recent Telecom Antitrust Handbook and is the Consulting Editor of, and the contributor of the EU and UK chapters in, Getting the Deal Through: Telecoms and Media, currently in its sixth edition.

Rachel is listed as a leading antitrust and regulatory lawyer in many guides and directories and was recently named one of the top 15 antitrust lawyers globally by Who's Who Legal published by Law Business Research. She is a former chair of the UK Law Society's European Group, a member of the American Bar association's International Task Force and on the UK Department of Trade and Industry's Panel of Experts on the Modernisation of EU law, and serves on a number of other committees in the antitrust and regulatory fields.

Rachel received a degree in Jurisprudence from the University of Oxford (St Hilda's College). She is admitted as a solicitor in England and Wales and is an associate member of the Brussels Bar. She has been a partner since 1988.
