

How to Submit an Article to the Tennessee Bar Journal

Writer's Guidelines

If you would like to submit an article, we would be more than happy to review it. Articles submitted to the Journal are reviewed by an editorial board, and should be of interest to Tennessee lawyers. Authors are not required to be lawyers, but articles that have any commercial aspect to them (i.e., if the article advocates using a particular person or company for any services) will not be considered.

The Tennessee Bar Journal is distributed to the apprx. 9,000 members of the Tennessee Bar Association.

Electronic submissions are preferred. If you do this, please also mail a hard copy. Do not send a fax. If you send a hard copy, double-space it. The Journal does not usually publish reprinted articles, but will consider it if the readership of the original publication does not over the Journal's readership, and if permission is available.

About 20 typewritten pages (5,000 words) is as long as our format can handle. Please put any notes at the end and not at the bottom of each page. Do not footnote your name, but include a biographical sketch separately.

If an article is accepted, we will notify you and determine at that time which issue it will likely be in. At that time you will be asked to sign an agreement letter, giving the Tennessee Bar Association rights to the article, along with permission to use it on our web site, and for WestLaw, LexisNexis and EBSCO to use it if they so choose. The review process can take up to two months.

Send your submission to Suzanne Robertson, editor, Tennessee Bar Association, 221 Fourth Avenue N., Nashville, TN 37219 or via email to srobertson@tnbar.org

Thank you for your interest in the Journal!
