

2007 NATIONAL CONFERENCE FACULTY
BIOGRAPHICAL INFORMATION

Frank H. Armani has been in solo practice, doing exclusively pro bono work, since his retirement from Armani, Fitzpatrick, Snyder & Armani in 1985. In 1973 he and Francis Belge gained international prominence as assigned attorneys in the defense of Robert Garrow on murder charges. The lawyers' struggle to protect the confidences of their client, who told them that he had killed other teenagers and where the bodies were, remains a central one in the teaching of legal ethics. As a result of that case, Mr. Armani co-authored the book "Privileged Information" with Tom Alibrandi; 20th Century Fox made the movie "Sworn to Silence", in which Mr. Armani had a small part and served as technical advisor; and Mr. Armani was featured on a station WETA-TV documentary "Ethics on Trial." Mr. Armani was the first chairman of the Onondaga Bar Association Law Day Committee and one of the founders of the Onondaga and New York State Bar committees of Lawyers Helping Lawyers. He received his BA in political science in 1950, and his law degree in 1956, both from Syracuse University.

Lynn A. Baker holds the Frederick M. Baron Chair in Law at the University of Texas School of Law in Austin, Texas, where she regularly teaches a course on Professional Responsibility. One of the nation's leading experts on the professional responsibilities of lawyers in mass tort settlements, she has served as an expert and consultant to lawyers throughout the country on more than 120 large-dollar, mass tort settlements. Baker's recent publications on legal ethics include: Facts about Fees: Lessons for Legal Ethics, 80 Texas Law Review 1985 (2002); The Aggregate Settlement Rule and Ideals of Client Service, 41 South Texas Law Review 227 (1999) (with Charles Silver); I Cut, You Choose: The Role of Plaintiffs' Counsel in Allocating Settlement Proceeds, 84 Virginia Law Review 1465 (1998) (with Charles Silver); and Mass Lawsuits and the Aggregate Settlement Rule, 32 Wake Forest Law Review 733 (1997) (with Charles Silver). She is a graduate of Yale College, Oxford University (England), and the Yale Law School.

Peter R. Bulmer is Managing Partner of the Chicago office of Jackson Lewis LLP, where he represents management nationwide in all facets of employment and labor law. Mr. Bulmer earned his B.A. degree from the University of Notre Dame and his J.D. degree, cum laude, from Creighton University School of Law, where he was Editor-in-Chief of the Creighton Law Review. He counsels management on employment matters and preventive measures to avoid litigation and, where litigation cannot be avoided, he defends employers before state and federal administrative agencies and courts. He is a featured speaker and author on employment law topics and a past chair of a national association of labor and employment lawyers. Mr. Bulmer has been named one of Illinois' "Super Lawyers," a distinction accorded no more than 5% of Illinois lawyers.

Daylian Cain is the Russell Sage Fellow of Behavioral Economics at Harvard University. He is a former Canada Science Scholar and fellow of the Social Science and Humanities Research Council of Canada. An award winning educator in both management and philosophy, Daylian's research lies at the intersections of psychology, economics, and ethics. His research entitled "The dirt on coming clean: Perverse effects of disclosing conflicts of interest" (Cain, Loewenstein, & Moore: Journal of Legal Studies, 2005) has been discussed in The New Yorker, Forbes, New Scientist, Harvard Business Review, The Washington Post, Business Week, Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, Decision Science News, The Wall Street Journal, and on CNN Financial News. Daylian is also co-editor of Conflicts of Interest: Problems and Solutions from Law, Medicine and Organizational Settings (Cambridge Press, 2005).

Donald D. Campbell is an attorney with Collins, Einhorn, Farrell & Ulanoff, P.C. in suburban Detroit, Michigan. Don's practice focuses on attorney grievance defense, judicial tenure matters, and legal malpractice defense. He has extensive experience in counseling and advising lawyers regarding ethics. He is an adjunct professor of law at the University of Detroit Mercy School of Law, where he teaches professional responsibility and criminal law. Prior to joining the Collins Einhorn firm, Don served as senior associate counsel with the Michigan Attorney Grievance Commission, the Michigan Supreme Court's investigative and prosecutorial arm for allegations of attorney misconduct. He also previously served as an assistant prosecuting attorney in Oakland County, Michigan.

Dennis E. Curtis is a Clinical Professor of Law at Yale Law School, where he teaches about the legal profession, sentencing, and prisoners' rights. Professor Curtis is a graduate of the United States Naval Academy, served for several years on submarines, and then became a lawyer, graduating from Yale Law School in 1966. After practicing law in Washington, D.C., he returned to Yale in 1970 to found its clinical program, providing legal services to federal prisoners, to mentally ill individuals, and to impoverished residents of New Haven. In 1981, he became the Robert C. and Nanette Packard Professor of Clinical Education at the University of Southern California Law Center, and then, in 1997, returned to Yale. In the last few years, Professor Curtis has created a new clinical program in which students work with Disciplinary Counsel in Connecticut's Lawyer Discipline Process. Students present cases of violations by lawyers of ethical rules to the Statewide Grievance Commission. All of these clinical programs enable students to provide legal services while learning about and participating in administrative and adjudicative proceedings at all levels of the state and federal systems. Professor Curtis is a member of the American Law Institute. He chaired the Clinical Section of the American Association of Law Schools. He has served on that Association's Accreditation Committee that evaluates law schools as well as on a task force of the American Bar Association on how lawyers bill clients. Professor Curtis is also a member of a panel that provides consulting services to law schools in need of assistance in planning and structuring their governance.

John M. Darley is the Dorman T. Warren Professor of Psychology at Princeton University and has received the distinguished scientist award from the Society of Experimental Social Psychologists. Dr. Darley is past president of the American Psychological Society, has been a fellow at the Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences, and has held a Guggenheim fellowship. He recently examined, with Paul Robinson, a law professor, the linkages and discontinuities between citizens' moral perceptions and the moral principles instantiated in legal codes.

Michael P. Downey is a partner at the St. Louis law firm Fox Galvin, LLC, where he represents businesses in complex civil litigation and counsels lawyers and accountants on legal and ethical matters. Mike also teaches legal ethics as an adjunct professor at Washington University School of Law and has published or presented on professional ethics more than 100 times. He chairs the ABA's Ethics and Technology Committee, serves on the Missouri Bar's Ethics 2005 Committee and Special Committee on Lawyer Advertising, and helps write ethics advisory opinions for the Illinois State Bar Association. Mike graduated with honors from Georgetown University and first in his class from Washington University School of Law, then clerked for the Hon. Pasco M. Bowman, II, Chief Judge of the United States Court of Appeals for the Eight Circuit, before entering private practice.

Mark A. Dubois received his J.D. in 1977 at the University of Connecticut School of Law and is the Chief Disciplinary Counsel for the State of Connecticut Judicial Branch, the first person to hold that position. His office was established to prosecute violations of Rules of Professional Conduct, attorney discipline related to criminal convictions, suspensions of impaired lawyers, unauthorized practice of law prosecutions and reciprocal discipline. The office also handles all litigation and appellate work for the Statewide Grievance Committee. He is on the Connecticut Bar Association Board of Governors and is joint editor of the Professional Discipline Digest of Connecticut Lawyer Magazine. He has been a lecturer at the University of Connecticut School of Law since 2001, teaching legal research, writing and lawyering skills to first year law student as well as serving as an advisor to the Mock Trial Society and coaching the trial advocacy teams.

Christine A. Edwards is a partner in Winston & Strawn's corporate practice group. Ms. Edwards focuses on the regulation of the financial services industry -- particularly the securities and banking industries -- as well as corporate governance and public and regulatory policy issues. Ms. Edwards provides proactive counsel to clients on corporate governance, public company boards of director issues, banking and securities industry regulation, consumer banking and securities transactions, and privacy and identity theft matters. She also has extensive experience supervising complex internal investigations and regulatory defense matters. Prior to joining the firm in 2003, Ms. Edwards was executive vice president and chief legal officer at Bank One Corporation, one of the nation's largest bank holding companies. She was in charge of Bank One's 500-person legal, compliance, government relations, and regulatory management department, with responsibility for the bank's worldwide legal and compliance needs. Previously, Ms. Edwards served as chief legal officer for various financial services firms, including Morgan Stanley and ABN AMRO, North America.

Howard Erichson is a professor of law at Seton Hall Law School, where he teaches Civil Procedure, Complex Litigation, Professional Responsibility, and Torts. He has published widely on topics of procedure and ethics, particularly as they relate to mass torts and other complex litigation. He is the past chair of the Civil Procedure Section of the Association of American Law Schools, serves as a member of the New Jersey Civil Practice Committee and as an Advisor to the American Law Institute's Principles of Aggregate Litigation, recently served four years on a District Ethics Committee, and edits the Mass Tort Litigation Blog. He graduated from Harvard University and from New York University School of Law, where he was editor-in-chief of the Law Review. Professor Erichson clerked for the New Jersey Supreme Court and for the Second Circuit, and practiced as a litigator with Cleary, Gottlieb, Steen & Hamilton in New York City. He joined the Seton Hall faculty in 1995, was elected Professor of the Year in 1998, and was named a Dean's Fellow in 2004. He has been a Visiting Professor at Columbia and Vanderbilt Law Schools, and a Visiting Scholar at NYU Law School; next year he will be a Visiting Professor at Fordham Law School.

Brian S. Faughnan is a partner in the Memphis office of Adams and Reese LLP, which has ten offices located across five states and Washington, D.C. Brian is a member of the Ethics, Complex Litigation and Class Action, and Appellate Advocacy teams within the Litigation Practice Group of Adams and Reese. His growing practice in the area of lawyer ethics and professional responsibility allows him the privilege of helping lawyers, law firms, and other businesses navigate the increasingly complex law of lawyering. Brian is a frequent author and speaker on ethics and professional responsibility issues, the co-chair of the ABA Business Law Section's "Firm Counsel Project," and a member of the Tennessee Bar Association (TBA) Standing Committee on Ethics and Professional Responsibility, serving as one of two Reporters for its current rules revision project. Brian graduated from Rhodes College and received his J.D., magna cum laude, from the University of Memphis. He is a former law clerk to United States Magistrate Judge Diane K. Vescovo, and a former adjunct professor of law at the University of Memphis Law School. Brian is a member of the Association of Professional Responsibility Lawyers, as well as a member of the Memphis, Tennessee, and American Bar Associations. Brian serves as a member of the TBA House of Delegates for District 30 and is an elected member of the Board of the TBA Young Lawyers Division.

Susan Saab Fortney serves as the George H. Mahon Professor of Law at Texas Tech University School of Law. Prior to joining the faculty, she worked with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission and practiced law, specializing in legal malpractice and coverage work. Professor Fortney's scholarship focuses on law firm governance and ethics issues. In 2005 she conducted a national cross-profession study of lawyers practicing in law firms, as well as corporate and government officers. The study, funded by the National Association for Law Placement Foundation, analyzed work-life conflicts and employer best practices. Professor Fortney works with numerous state, national, and international programs, including the Council for the International Exchange of Scholars, the Supreme Court of Texas Task Force on the Disciplinary Rules of Professional Conduct, and the Supreme Court of Texas Grievance Oversight Committee. Professor Fortney has earned recognition for her contributions as a teacher, scholar, and public servant. In 2005, she received the Texas Tech University President's Academic Achievement Award for excellence in teaching, service, and research. In 2006, she was the Texas Tech University recipient of the Chancellor's Distinguished Teachers Award, the highest teaching award in the university.

Lawrence J. Fox is a partner at the Philadelphia firm of Drinker Biddle and Reath LLP (since 1976) and specializes in corporate and securities litigation. He served as Managing Partner (1987-1989, 1991-1998) and is the former chair of the firm's Professional Responsibility Committee. He has served as chair of the ABA Standing Committee on Ethics and Professional Responsibility and the Planning Committee for the annual ABA National Conference on Professional Responsibility. In other ABA roles, he served as chair of the ABA Section of Litigation, Section Officers Conference and Post-Conviction Death Penalty Representation Project. He was the 2005 recipient of the ABA Pro Bono Publico Award. His appearances across the country include participating in numerous continuing legal education programs and lectures or classes at over 35 law schools. Television appearances include ABC News' Nightline, CNN's Crossfire, Talk Back Live and Burden of Proof, and NBC's The Today Show on topics covering a wide range of professional responsibility issues. Internationally, he has visited Argentina, Italy and The People's Republic of China as a specialist and speaker on the role and rights of lawyers. He is the author of the book Legal Tender: A Lawyers' Guide to Professional Dilemmas and the co-author of the books Traversing the Ethical Minefield: Problems, Law, and Professional Responsibility; Red Flags: A Lawyer's Handbook on Legal Ethics; and Your Lawyer: A User's Guide with Professor Susan R. Martyn. In addition, he has written numerous articles that have appeared in national law reviews, professional publications, and state and local bar journals.

Monroe H. Freedman is a Professor of Law and the former Dean at Hofstra University Law School. For the past twenty years he has also lectured annually on lawyers' ethics and taught trial advocacy at Harvard Law School. Professor Freedman has received the ABA's Michael Franck Award, in recognition of "a lifetime of original and influential scholarship in the field of lawyers' ethics." His first ethics book, Lawyers' Ethics in an Adversary System (1975), received the American Bar Association's Gavel Award Certificate of Merit. The Harvard Civil Rights/Civil Liberties Law Review called it one of the few "monumental contributions to legal education in the past generation." His latest book is Understanding Lawyers' Ethics (3rd ed., Matthew Bender, 2004), written with Georgetown Law Professor Abbe Smith. The Professional Lawyer called the first edition "idealistic in the best sense of the word, pragmatic, but not cynical, and rich with practical examples."

Cynthia (Cindy) L. Galliher is the Deputy Executive Director of Lawyers Concerned for Lawyers-Administration and Helpline of Pennsylvania, Inc., ("LCL") a charity run by lawyers for the benefit of lawyers in distress because of alcohol, drugs, gambling, stress, depression and other serious mental and emotional problems. She received her Bachelor of Arts Degree in Sociology/Psychology from Clarion University of Pennsylvania (1991) and her Master's in Social Work from Marywood University in Scranton, Pennsylvania (2001). Prior to becoming LCL's Deputy Executive Director, Mrs. Galliher was an outpatient addictions counselor at Gaudenzia, Inc where she treated mentally ill substance abusers as well as individuals who were part of the Pennsylvania State Corrections System. She also has experience as an administrative case manager for ACCESS Employee Assistance Program and LCL. Mrs. Galliher was also an intensive case manager for chronically and severely mentally ill adults while employed at the Helen Stevens Center in Carlisle, PA.

Stephen Gillers is Professor of Law at New York University School of Law, where he served as Vice Dean from 1999-2004. He holds the Emily Kempin chair. He does most of his research and writing on the law and rules governing lawyers and judges. His courses include Regulation of Lawyers and Law and Literature (a course whose readings range from Sophocles, Shakespeare, and Kafka to modern novels and detective stories and which he co-teaches with Graduate School Dean Catharine Stimpson). His current work in progress includes a study of the legal battles to publish James Joyce's Ulysses in the United States. Professor Gillers has written widely on legal and judicial ethics, including in law reviews and the legal and popular press. He has taught legal ethics as a visitor at other law schools and has spoken on lawyer regulatory issues at federal and state judicial conferences, ABA conventions, state and local bar meetings nationwide, at law firms in the U.S. and abroad, at corporate law departments, and in law school lectureships. He chairs the ABA Joint Committee on Lawyer Regulation, which assists U.S. jurisdictions in development of the legal and judicial ethics rules. Professor Gillers is the author of Regulation of Lawyers: Problems of Law and Ethics, a widely used law school casebook first published in 1985 and now in its seventh edition (Aspen, 2005). He and Professor Roy Simon of Hofstra Law School edit Regulation of Lawyers: Statutes and Standards, an annotated volume of rules governing American lawyers and judges, which has been published yearly since 1989. Following a clerkship with Chief Judge Gus J. Solomon in Federal District Court in Portland, Oregon in 1968-69, Professor Gillers practiced law in New York City before joining the NYU faculty in 1978.

Lori S. Gordon received her undergraduate degree with honors from Brown University in 1979. She graduated from the Northwestern University School of Law in 1983, where she served as an Editor of the Northwestern Journal of International Law and Business. She also received an MBA from the Kellogg School of Management in 1983. Lori spent 13 years practicing corporate and securities law, first at Schiff Hardin and then at Latham & Watkins, where she became a partner in 1991. Subsequently, Lori worked as the Director of Corporate Development and General Counsel for Jellyvision, Inc., an interactive media company best known for its CD-ROM games “You Don’t Know Jack” and “Who Wants to Be a Millionaire?” Lori also has worked as a consultant on legal and business matters and authored a book entitled Rest Assured: The Sabbatical Solution for Lawyers (American Bar Association, 2002). In October, 2002 Lori joined the Attorneys’ Liability Assurance Society, Inc., A Risk Retention Group (ALAS), based in Chicago. ALAS is the largest provider in the world of lawyers’ professional liability insurance coverage to large law firms. It is an association of some of the largest law firms in the United States that currently insures over 58,000 lawyers practicing throughout the United States and abroad. Lori currently is Loss Prevention Counsel at ALAS.

Carolyn Hinchman Gray received her JD from the University of Texas School of Law and her LLM in Taxation from Georgetown. She clerked for the Honorable Bohdan A. Futey at the Court of Federal Claims, before joining Kirkpatrick & Lockhart as an associate. In 1998 she came to the Internal Revenue Service, Office of Chief Counsel, where she was the National Coordinator for Leasing Shelters and Senior Counsel. She moved to the IRS Office of Professional Responsibility as Senior Advisor to the Director in 2004.

James J. Grogan is the Chief Counsel for the Illinois Attorney Registration and Disciplinary Commission of the Supreme Court of Illinois (ARDC). For over 26 years, he has investigated and prosecuted hundreds of charges of lawyer misconduct and he has argued dozens of disciplinary cases in the Supreme Court of Illinois. He is a Past President of the National Organization of Bar Counsel (NOBC), the bar association of lawyer regulators. He is a member of the Advisory Committee of the National Center for Prosecution Ethics of the National College of District Attorneys. Over the course of the past 20 years, Mr. Grogan has taught legal ethics at the Loyola University of Chicago School of Law, where he is an Adjunct Professor, and the DePaul University College of Law. He has presented hundreds of speeches, lectures or workshops to law firms, bar associations, corporations and judicial and governmental groups and agencies on various professional responsibility topics.

Kenneth J. Hagreen is the executive director of Lawyers Concerned for Lawyers of Pennsylvania, Inc. (“LCL”). LCL is a not-for-profit lawyer assistance program that runs a confidential helpline service for Pennsylvania’s lawyers and judges who are in distress because of alcohol, drugs, gambling, depression, anxiety, stress and other serious emotional or mental health issues. He is a licensed attorney in Pennsylvania (1994) and South Carolina (1977). Mr. Hagreen practiced law from 1977 through 1990 in several capacities including private practice in Myrtle Beach, S.C.; Vice President – Legal, Defender Development, Inc.; General Counsel, S.C. Real Estate Commission; Senior Associate, Kaplan Russin Vecchi and Kirkwood; and Vice President – Legal, Shawnee Development, Inc. He received his B.S. from the State University of New York at Brockport College (1972) and his J.D. from the University of South Carolina’s School of Law (1977). Mr. Hagreen was named Teacher of the Year, 1974, Thomas Heyward Academy (Ridgeland, S.C.); awarded the Order of the Palmetto, South Carolina’s highest civilian award, 1986; received a Special Achievement Award, Pennsylvania Bar Association, 2000; and the Caron Foundation’s annual Community Service Legal / Law Enforcement Award, 2004.

Leslie A. T. Haley currently serves as Assistant Ethics Counsel for the Virginia State Bar, providing ethics advice to members of the Virginia Bar and staffing the Legal Ethics Committee. In her 8 years with the Bar, Ms. Haley has also staffed the Committee on Lawyer Advertising and Solicitation and provided support to the Unauthorized Practice of Law Committee. Her primary responsibility includes providing legal ethics advice to lawyers throughout the Commonwealth on interpretation and guidance of the Rules of Professional Responsibility. Prior to joining the Bar, Ms. Haley was in private practice for five years, practicing principally in the areas of domestic, criminal and personal injury law. Ms. Haley attended West Virginia University receiving a BS in Business Administration/Marketing and after a sales career with Philip Morris, USA returned and received her JD in 1993.

Dr. Caroline N. Harada is a clinical instructor in geriatrics at the University of Chicago. Her clinical focus is on memory disorders of aging and primary care geriatrics. She is a faculty member of the University of Chicago Center for Comprehensive Care and Research on Memory Disorders, where she specializes in diagnosis and management of patients with Alzheimer’s and cerebrovascular dementia. Dr. Harada recently completed a book chapter, co-authored by Greg Sachs, also a geriatrician at the University of Chicago, on ethics in the care of the patient with dementia. She is currently in the process of writing an article addressing the issue of practicing doctors who develop dementia. Her other interests include palliative care medicine and medical education.

Dr. Stafford C. Henry is a graduate of Amherst College and S.U.N.Y. Upstate Medical Center. He completed a psychiatry residency at the University of Michigan Medical Center and a post-graduate fellowship in Forensic Psychiatry at Rush Medical Center in Chicago. Dr. Henry is triply board-certified in General Adult Psychiatry, Forensic Psychiatry and Addiction Psychiatry. For approximately ten years, Dr. Henry served as a staff psychiatrist for the Circuit Court of Cook County providing expert testimony to the courts. Additionally, for the last twelve years, he has served as the Medical Director of Rush Behavioral Health’s Multidisciplinary Program, a three day program that evaluates physicians, attorneys and other high accountability professionals. Dr. Henry also has managed a private psychiatric practice for the last twelve years, performing both assessments and treatment. Dr. Henry has served as a consultant to several state licensing and disciplinary boards, hospitals as well as multiple local, state and federal agencies. He has lectured on such topics as Major Depression and Bipolar disorder, Substance Abuse, Dual diagnosis, Specialized Assessments, Malingering, Sentencing the Mentally Ill Offender and Mental Health Issues in Capital Cases.

Aaron E. Hoffman received his undergraduate degree with honors from Washington University in 1969. He graduated with honors in 1972 from the University of Chicago Law School, where he served as an Associate Editor of the Law Review and was admitted to the Order of the Coif. Aaron spent the next 28 years (with the exception of two years practicing overseas) as a commercial litigator with major Chicago law firms. His experience included jury and non-jury trial and appellate work in state and federal courts in Illinois and elsewhere, as well as arbitration and mediation proceedings. Aaron was involved in numerous cases involving claims of professional negligence by attorneys and accountants. In June, 2000 Aaron joined the Attorneys' Liability Assurance Society, Inc., a Risk Retention Group, and is now Senior Vice President—Loss Prevention. ALAS is a mutual insurance company providing lawyers' professional liability insurance to approximately 250 large law firms located throughout the United States. Aaron's duties include extensive writing and speaking on topics related to professional responsibility and lawyer liability.

David Hricik has been an Assistant Professor of Law, Mercer University School of Law, Macon, GA since 2002. He has a B.A., 1984, University of Arizona and J.D., 1988, Northwestern University School of Law. Professor Hricik teaches Professional Responsibility; Internet Law; Patent Law & Litigation; Civil Procedure; and Remedies, and also serves as an expert witness and consultant to patent malpractice, disqualification, and litigation matters. He is the Chair of the Professionalism & Ethics Committee of the American Intellectual Property Law Association (2005-) and chaired the Ethics & Professional Responsibility Committee of the Intellectual Property Section of the American Bar Association (2002-03). He also served as a member of the Texas Disciplinary Rules of Professional Conduct Committee of the Texas State Bar (1997-2002). Professor Hricik has taught law at the University of Houston Law Center and the University of Texas School of Law and other courses at St. Edward's Graduate School of Management. Prior to becoming a full-time professor of law, Professor Hricik practiced law, principally in patent and complex commercial litigation, first with Baker Botts (Associate, 1988-96; Special Counsel, 1997-99), then as a founding partner of Slusser & Frost (Partner, 1999-2000), and finally with Yetter & Warden (Of Counsel, 2000-2002). He has numerous publications and presentations on legal ethics, technology, and patent practice and his website, www.Hricik.com, contains various ethics and intellectual property resources.

Deborah J. Jeffrey regularly represents clients in the legal industry on matters of ethics, risk management and professional liability. She is a partner at Zuckerman Spaeder LLP, where she co-chairs the firm's Professional Services Practice Group. In an environment of increasing complexity and regulation, Ms. Jeffrey counsels lawyers and law firms in disciplinary proceedings, bar admissions, unauthorized practice of law, lawyer mobility, law firm structure and governance, lawyers' responsibilities under the SEC's Sarbanes-Oxley rules. She also assists law firm managing partners, general counsels and administrators in establishing best practices compliance programs relating to legal recruiting and hiring, Web sites and electronic communications and conflicts of interest. As part of her complex litigation practice, she has extensive experience in prosecuting and defending motions to disqualify and legal malpractice actions for major institutional clients. Ms. Jeffrey serves as a member of the Board on Professional Responsibility of the D.C. Court of Appeals. She is a frequent author and lecturer on issues of professional responsibility, has taught legal ethics for the continuing education program of the DC Bar and has served as an adjunct professor in professional responsibility for the American University's School of Law.

Diane L. Karpman, Karpman & Associates, Los Angeles, California focuses her practice on lawyers, defending attorney discipline before the State Bar Court, and ethics support for law firms. As an authority in the areas of attorney ethics and standards of professional care, she is a frequent expert witness and speaker. She is widely published, and the author of "Ethics Byte," which appears monthly in the California Bar Journal. Appointed to: California Attorney Civility Task Force (2006-2007); ABA Standing Committee on Professionalism (2006-2007); ABA/BNA Lawyers' Manual on Professional Conduct, Editorial Board (2000-2006), Chair (2006); ABA House of Delegates (2004-2007); ABA Center for Professional Responsibility Publications Board (1997-1998); ABA Standing Committee on Client Protection (1996); Association of Professional Responsibility Lawyers (President, 2000); Members Consultant Group, ALI Restatement of the Law of Lawyers; Principles of Aggregate Litigation (2005-2007); Los Angeles Superior Court Appointed Legal Ethics Consultant (2001-2006); Western State University College of Law Alumni of the Year (2004); Fellow of the ABA, and State Bar of California.

Arthur J. Lachman practices in Seattle, Washington, focusing on legal ethics, professional liability, and law firm risk management issues. A 1989 graduate of the University of Washington School of Law, he clerked on the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, has practiced as a commercial litigation attorney, and has taught civil litigation subjects at the University of Washington and the University of Puget Sound (now Seattle University) Schools of Law. Mr. Lachman is co-chair of the Firm Counsel Project, an initiative of the ABA Business Law Section's Professional Conduct Committee, has served on the Washington State Bar Association RPC Committee, and is a member of the ABA Center for Professional Responsibility and the Association of Professional Responsibility Lawyers (APRL), currently serving on APRL's Public Statements and Program Committees. Formerly, he chaired the Ethics & Loss Prevention Committee and served as the Director of Professional Development at Graham & Dunn in Seattle. He holds bachelors and masters degrees in accounting from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

Lisa G. Lerman is professor of law at The Catholic University of America, Columbus School of Law, where she has taught since 1987. Professor Lerman is coordinator of clinical programs for the law school and co-director of CUA's Law and Public Policy Program, an academic enrichment program for students interested in careers in public interest law, government and politics. Lerman teaches contracts, professional responsibility, and the public policy practicum. She is co-author of Ethical Problems in the Practice of Law (Aspen 2005) of Learning from Practice (West 1998), and of many articles about lawyers, law firms, the legal profession and legal education. Professor Lerman is chair of the planning committee for the ABA National Conference on Professional Responsibility. She is a member of the National Advisory Committee for Equal Justice Works. Lerman has served as chair of the Professional Responsibility Section of the Association of American Law Schools and as a member of the D.C. Bar Legal Ethics Committee. Professor Lerman received a B.A. with honors in History from Barnard College, Columbia University, in 1976. She received a J.D. in 1979 from New York University School of Law, where she was senior articles editor of the N.Y.U. Review of Law and Social Change. She received an LL.M. in Advocacy from Georgetown University Law Center in 1984 after a two-year clinical fellowship at the Center for Applied Legal Studies.

Steven Lubet is Professor of Law at Northwestern University and Director of the Fred Bartlit Center for Trial Strategy. His most recent books are Lawyers' Poker: 52 Lessons that Lawyers Can Learn from Card Players (Oxford 2006) and Murder in Tombstone: The Forgotten Trial of Wyatt Earp (Yale 2005). It is rumored that he is the only law professor in the United States to have appeared on both The Daily Show with Jon Stewart and the O'Reilly Factor.

Thomas P. Luning is a partner of Schiff Hardin LLP, where he has practiced law, primarily in business litigation, since 1968. He was Managing Partner of his firm from 1990 to 1996, and has served as its General Counsel since 1996, including advising on a wide range of ethics and lawyer-conduct matters. He has been a member of the firm's Professional Practice Committee since 1983. In prior years, he taught the University of Chicago Law School course "The Legal Profession," which concerns legal ethics and other aspects of professional conduct. He has spoken at a variety of seminars and forums on professional responsibility matters. He co-chaired the Illinois State Bar Association/Chicago Bar Association Joint Committee on Ethics 2000, and is a member and past chair of the Chicago Bar Association's Professional Responsibility Committee. He is a graduate of Georgetown University Law Center and clerked for a year after law school for the Honorable Spottswood W. Robinson, III, and for the Court for the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit.

Wm. Marty Martin, PsyD, MPH, MA is currently an Associate Professor in the Department of Management in the College of Commerce at DePaul University. He teaches graduate level courses in human resources and organizational behavior. His research focuses on workplace bullying and health care management. Dr. Martiin also serves as a coach, consultant and licensed psychologist, working with physicians and other high-level professionals who are seeking to manage stress, manage work/life balance, and control their inappropriate behaviors at work. He has also been a frequent speaker with The American College of Physician Executives (ACPE) and author specializing on the topic of disruptive physician behavior.

Royal (Rob) B. Martin founded Martin, Brown & Sullivan, Ltd. in 1992. The firm practice areas include federal and state tax controversies, both civil and criminal, and white collar criminal defense. Mr. Martin was an Assistant United States Attorney for the Northern District of Illinois from 1970 until 1975, and has been in private practice since that time. He has lectured and written in the area of the defense of criminal tax matters. Mr. Martin serves on the Sections of Taxation and Criminal Justice for the American Bar Association, and is a fellow of the American College of Trial Lawyers. Mr. Martin received his JD from the University of Washington School of Law in 1970.

Ronald C. Minkoff is a member of Frankfurt Kurnit Klein & Selz, P.C. in New York City. In addition to his commercial litigation practice, he represents attorneys in a wide variety of matters, including partnership disputes, disciplinary cases and legal malpractice actions. Mr. Minkoff has his J.D. Degree from Columbia Law School, Class of 1980. He was an attorney at the Nassau County Legal Aid Society (1980-83), an associate attorney at Obermaier Morvillo & Abramowitz, P.C. (1983-85) and Owen & Fennell (1985-87), and a member of Fennell & Minkoff (1987-94) and Beldock Levine & Hoffman (1994-2001) before joining Frankfurt Kurnit. He is the former Chair of the Committee on Professional Discipline of the New York City Bar Association, a current member of the Committee on Professional Responsibility and a past member of Committee on Professional and Judicial Ethics. He is also a member of the Committee on Standards of Attorney Conduct and Committee on Professional Discipline of the New York State Bar Association, which is evaluating proposed amendments to the New York Code of Professional Responsibility. He is the Immediate Past President of the Association of Professional Responsibility Lawyers (“APRL”). He is the Chair of subcommittees of APRL and the New York City Bar Association regarding the ABA Commission on the Model Code of Judicial Conduct. He is an Adjunct Professor of Professional Responsibility at Brooklyn Law School, and has written and lectured extensively on topics involving the law of lawyering, including the attorney-client privilege, the ethical duties of lawyer/directors, multijurisdictional practice and the obligations of departing law partners.

Thomas D. Morgan has been the Oppenheim Professor of Antitrust and Trade Regulation Law at The George Washington University Law School since 1989. A graduate of the University of Chicago Law School, he began teaching at the University of Illinois College of Law and later served as Dean at the Emory University School of Law. He has taught and written in the field of professional responsibility for over 30 years. Author of many articles, he is co-author (with Ronald Rotunda) of the widely-used casebook “Problems and Materials on Professional Responsibility” (9th Edition 2006), and its annual Standards Supplement. Professor Morgan served as one of two Associate Reporters for the American Law Institute's Restatement of the Law (Third): The Law Governing Lawyers, and as one of two Associate Reporters for the American Bar Association's Ethics 2000 Commission. He received an American Bar Foundation Award for Distinguished Scholarship on Legal Ethics and Professional Responsibility in 2000, and his book “Lawyer Law: Comparing the ABA Model Rules and the ALI Restatement (Third) of the Law Governing Lawyers” was published by the ABA Press in 2005.

Thomas R. Mulroy has recently been appointed by the Illinois Supreme Court to serve as a Circuit Court Judge for the Circuit Court of Illinois. Prior to that, he has counseled businesses, boards, and individuals for over thirty years on a variety of legal matters involving intellectual property, Sarbanes-Oxley, environmental, anti-trust, insurance coverage and United States Customs issues. He has represented corporations in patent litigation and securities and environmental class action litigation. He has been a member of the Boards of Directors of the Legal Assistance Foundation, the Illinois Institute for Continuing Legal Education and the Illinois Bar Foundation. Mr. Mulroy was an Assistant United States Attorney in Chicago. He is a Fellow of the American College of Trial Lawyers. He has been an adjunct professor of law at Northwestern, Loyola and DePaul Schools of Law. He was Special Counsel to the Illinois Registration & Disciplinary Commission and has published "The Illinois Attorney Registration and Disciplinary Commission: Its Structure Operation and Limitations," Loyola Law Journal (1998); and "Attorney's Duty to Report Misconduct after In Re Himmel; or Stool Pigeons or Dead Ducks," CBA Record (January 1996). He was lead trial counsel for the City of Chicago in the Chicago Flood Litigation that was a class action and an Admiralty matter pending in the state and federal courts.

Abdon M. Pallasch covers legal affairs for The Chicago Sun-Times. He has also written for the Chicago Tribune, Chicago Lawyer magazine, The Tampa Tribune and UPI. He is a graduate of Northwestern University's Medill School of Journalism.

Ellen A. Pansky is a principal in the law firm of Pansky & Markle, South Pasadena, California, specializing in professional liability litigation, State Bar disciplinary defense, legal ethics consultations and expert testimony. She is a former prosecutor for the State Bar of California (1978-1985). Ms. Pansky is a member of the Los Angeles County Bar Association Board of Trustees, and serves on the L.A.C.B.A Professional Responsibility and Ethics Committee (chair 1996-97). She has published extensively in the areas of legal ethics and professional responsibility, and is a California State Bar certified MCLE provider. She is past president of the Association of Professional Responsibility Lawyers (APRL); a charter member of the ABA's Center for Professional Responsibility; and an Inaugural Founder of the National Institute for Teaching Ethics and Professionalism (NIFTEP). She is a member of the Editorial Board of the ABA/BNA Lawyers' Manual on Professional Conduct (2004-2007) and serves as APRL's liaison to the ABA Standing Committee on Ethics and Professional Responsibility. Ms. Pansky served as chair of the State Bar of California's Committee on Women in the Law and as president of the National Association of Women Lawyers. Ms. Pansky graduated summa cum laude from the University of California at Los Angeles in 1974, and received her J.D. degree from Loyola University School of Law in Los Angeles in 1977. She has been rated a "preeminent" lawyer by Martindale Hubble, and has been acknowledged by her peers as a top litigator.

Lee F. Peoples is Associate Director of the Oklahoma City University Law Library and Adjunct Professor of Law. He teaches two advanced legal research courses and frequently lectures on legal research in substantive courses including Professional Responsibility. He has published law review articles, book chapters, and books focused on comparative law and domestic and international legal research. He is the author of Legal Ethics: A Legal Research Guide, 2nd ed. (W.S. Hein, 2006) ISBN 0837736064. He received his B.A., J.D., and M.L.I.S. degrees from the University of Oklahoma. Lee is a member of the bars of the State of Oklahoma, Western District of Oklahoma, and 10th Circuit Court of Appeals. Before entering law librarianship he practiced law in Oklahoma City for a year and a half.

Karen K. Phillips received an undergraduate degree in economics from Northwestern University in 1973. She graduated in 1976 from the Georgetown University Law Center, where she served as an editor of the Law & Policy in International Business law journal. Karen spent numerous years as a commercial litigator with a major Chicago law firm. Her experience included jury and non-jury trial and appellate work in state and federal courts in Illinois and elsewhere. Since 1996, Karen has been a Loss Prevention Counsel with Attorneys' Liability Assurance Society, Inc., a Risk Retention Group. ALAS is a mutual insurance company providing lawyers' professional liability insurance to approximately 250 large law firms located throughout the United States. Karen's duties include writing, speaking, and counseling on topics related to professional responsibility and lawyer liability.

Charles B. Plattsmier graduated from Louisiana State University Law Center in 1978 and was licensed to practice law in Louisiana that year. He entered private practice and by 1981 was a partner in the law firm of Hunter and Plattsmier in Morgan City, Louisiana, where the firm's emphasis was on maritime litigation. In 1993, Mr. Plattsmier began his own firm with offices in Morgan City and Baton Rouge. Mr. Plattsmier served as the President of the St. Mary Parish Bar Association and as a House of Delegates member to the Louisiana State Bar from 1983 until 1995. In 1990, he became one of the first lawyer hearing committee members in the then newly created Louisiana Attorney Disciplinary Board. After serving as a lawyer member and chair of the hearing committee for four years, Mr. Plattsmier accepted a position as a member on the Disciplinary Board, where he served for two years. On February 1, 1996 he became the Chief Disciplinary Counsel for the State of Louisiana and today stands as the longest serving Chief Counsel under the Louisiana Attorney Disciplinary Board. Mr. Plattsmier has authored amendments to both the Rules of Professional Conduct as well as Supreme Court Rule 19, was a member of the Ethics 2000 Committee that updated and amended Louisiana's ethics rules, and has served on countless committees of both the Louisiana Supreme Court and the Louisiana State Bar Association. He is a prolific speaker having provided over 300 lectures and presentations on ethics and professionalism nationally and across the state.

Milton C. Regan, Jr. is Professor of Law at Georgetown University Law Center. He teaches courses on ethics, corporations, law firms, and the legal profession, and is Co-Director of the law school's Ethics and Corporate Practice Institute. Professor Regan is the author of "Eat What You Kill: The Fall of a Wall Street Lawyer", and is co-author of the casebook "Legal Ethics and Corporate Practice."

Paul D. Rheingold is the founder of Rheingold, Valet, Rheingold, Shkolnik, & McCartney LLP and has been in practice since 1958. He graduated from Harvard Law School, LL.B. and Oberlin College, A.B. He has been active on the plaintiffs' steering committees for such mass torts as Ephedra, Bextra, Fenphen, Albuterol and L-tryptophan. He is the author of "Litigating Mass Tort Cases," published by Thompson/West and ATLA Press, 2006. Paul has also been active in teaching (at Harvard and Stamford Law Schools), and in bar association and legal commission work. He is a former national officer of the Association of Trial Lawyers of America.

Kim D. Ringler, a private practitioner in Hackensack, NJ is a graduate of Georgetown University Law School where she was a Law Fellow. Ms Ringler has concentrated her law practice on attorney ethics for a quarter century. She represents attorneys at all stages of the disciplinary and admission processes and consults with lawyers on ethics issues. A former Assistant District Attorney in Kings County (Brooklyn), NY, she served as Special Trial Counsel to the Departmental Disciplinary Committee for the 1st Dept of the New York Supreme Court. Her New York City experience included work at Stillman, Friedman & Shaw, P.C., a mid-town litigation law firm. She has been a member of the New York State Bar Association Committee on Professional Ethics, the Association of the Bar of the City of New York Committee on Professional Responsibility and Committee on Professional Discipline. The New Jersey Supreme Court has appointed her to the District IIB Ethics Committee, chair of the Fee Arbitration Committee and Pro Bono counsel for indigent attorneys. She is a member of the New Jersey State Bar Association Standing Committee on Professional Responsibility. She is a past president of Women Lawyers in Bergen, a past member of the National Organization of Bar Counsel, a trustee of the Bergen County Bar Foundation, and serves on many boards and committees in her hometown where she was a two-term deputy mayor and is an incumbent councilwoman. She has recently been appointed a Director of the Association of Professional Responsibility Lawyers, chair of its Public Statements Committee and representative to the NOBC-APRL Joint Committee on the Aging of the Profession.

Louis Rorimer is a Partner with Jones Day in Cleveland, Ohio, where he coordinates the Firm's procedures for responding to auditors' requests for information. He practices in the area of employee benefits and executive compensation, concentrating in the design and implementation of stock incentive plans for executives and broader groups of employees. He is the author of International Stock Plans, the only comprehensive treatise on how to export employee equity. He is also the inventor of InStop, a software solution for managing insider trading concerns. He was Chair of the Subcommittee on Employee Benefits, Executive Compensation and Section 16 of the Federal Regulation of Securities Committee of the Section of Business Law of the American Bar Association and now serves as a member of the Advisory Committee. He also serves on the Executive Committee of the National Association of Stock Plan Professionals. Louis is a graduate of Harvard College and Case Western Reserve University School of Law.

Mary T. Robinson provides consulting and expert witness services on professional responsibility issues. She recently resigned her position as Administrator of the Attorney Registration and Disciplinary Commission (ARDC) of the Supreme Court of Illinois, a position she held for fifteen years, having also served for the previous three years as a Commissioner of the ARDC. Her practice before her appointment as Administrator included several years with the Illinois State Appellate Defender as an assistant and then deputy in charge of a regional office, followed by ten years in private practice concentrating in appellate, criminal and family law. She has served on the ABA Standing Committee on Professional Discipline, and several committees of the Illinois Supreme Court and various Illinois bar associations, most recently, the Illinois Supreme Court Commission on Professionalism, having been instrumental in developing the proposal that led to the Commission's creation. She has taught Professional Responsibility at Northwestern University Law School and Northern Illinois University School of Law, and has presented in programs of the ABA National Conference on Professional Responsibility, the National Organization of Bar Counsel, and multiple programs sponsored by the Illinois State Bar Association, the Chicago Bar Association and federal and county bar associations throughout Illinois. She is a graduate of the University of Illinois at Chicago and received her law degree from the University of Southern California.

Thomas (Tom) Ross is Professor of Law at the University of Pittsburgh. Professor Ross earned a B.A. with High Honors in Philosophy and a J.D. from the University of Virginia, graduating from the law school with the Order of the Coif and having served as a member of the Virginia Law Review. Before entering academics, he worked for the Wall Street firm of Cravath, Swaine & Moore, and the Washington, D.C., law firm of Hogan & Hartson. Professor Ross has an active ethics consulting and expert witness practice, having testified as an expert in both federal and state courts. His most recent engagements include working on behalf of the lead plaintiff in the Enron civil litigation and as an expert for the SEC in a securities fraud matter.

Patricia A. Sallen is ethics counsel for the State Bar of Arizona. She has worked for the State Bar as a bar counsel in the Lawyer Regulation Office, investigating and prosecuting ethics complaints against attorneys, and has been in private practice, where she focused on general civil and appellate litigation and media and intellectual property law. She also has worked as a newspaper editor and reporter. She received her law degree in 1988 from Arizona State University and bachelor's degree in 1982 from the University of Arizona.

Roy D. Simon Jr. is the Howard Lichtenstein Distinguished Professor of Legal Ethics at Hofstra University School of Law, and is the Director of Hofstra's Institute for the Study of Legal Ethics. He received his B.A. from Williams College and his J.D. from New York University, where he was Editor-in-Chief of the N.Y.U. Law Review. He clerked for United States District Judge Robert R. Merhige in Richmond, Virginia, then practiced law at Jenner & Block in Chicago. He began teaching at Washington University School of Law in St. Louis in 1983 and joined the Hofstra faculty in 1992. Professor Simon annually writes Simon's New York Code of Professional Responsibility Annotated (now in its tenth edition) and (together with Professor Stephen Gillers of N.Y.U.) annually compiles and edits Regulation of Lawyers: Statutes and Standards (now in its eighteenth edition). Professor Simon is Vice Chair and Reporter for the New York State Bar's Committee on Standards of Professional Conduct (COSAC), which is comprehensively reviewing and recommending revisions to the New York Code of Professional Responsibility. Professor Simon is a Vice-Chair of the New York State Bar Association's Committee on Professional Ethics, and is a Member of the Nassau County Bar Committee on Professional Ethics, the New York City Bar Committee on Professional Responsibility, and the New York City Bar's Task Force on the Role of the Lawyer in Corporate Governance. He has written a monthly column for the New York Professional Responsibility Report since 1998.

David J. Stetler is a founding principal of Stetler & Duffy, Ltd. His practice is primarily concentrated in the defense of complex civil and administrative matters and white collar prosecutions and investigations, including health care, antitrust, securities, and tax matters. From 1988 until early 1998, Mr. Stetler was a partner at McDermott, Will & Emery, and for the prior nine years he served in the United States Attorney's Office for the Northern District of Illinois. As an Assistant U.S. Attorney, he investigated and prosecuted complex financial crimes and public corruption cases. He was appointed Deputy Chief of the Special Prosecutions Division and later, Chief of the Criminal Receiving and Appellate Division. Mr. Stetler has extensive federal trial experience in both jury and non-jury cases and is a Fellow of the American College of Trial Lawyers. He has taught trial practice for the U.S. Attorney General's Advocacy Institute and at John Marshall Law School, and he is a frequent speaker on white collar topics.

Ann E. Tenbrunsel (Ph.D. Northwestern University) is a professor in the Mendoza College of Business at The University of Notre Dame and is the Arthur F. and Mary J. O'Neil co-director of the Institute for Ethical Business Worldwide. Her research interests focus on decision making and negotiations with a particular emphasis in ethics. She is the co-editor of three books on these topics and has published her research in a variety of journals, including Administrative Science Quarterly, Academy of Management Review, Academy of Management Journal, Organizational Behavior and Human Decision Processes, Journal of Applied Psychology, and Journal of Personality and Social Psychology.

Anne E. Thar is the Conflicts of Interest Partner for Winston & Strawn LLP. In that capacity, Ms. Thar monitors compliance with the firm's conflicts procedures and assists partners in analyzing and resolving conflict of interest issues. Before joining Winston & Strawn LLP, Ms. Thar was Vice President and General Counsel for the Illinois State Bar Association Mutual Insurance Company (ISBA Mutual) and President of ISBA Mutual Consulting Services, Inc., a subsidiary of ISBA Mutual that provides risk management services to the legal profession. At ISBA Mutual, Ms. Thar was in charge of ISBA Mutual's loss prevention program and lectured and wrote frequently on loss prevention topics. Ms. Thar also practiced privately for several years, primarily at Hopkins & Sutter. She received her undergraduate degree from Mount Holyoke College in South Hadley, Massachusetts in 1979 and her law degree from Northwestern University School of Law in 1983.

Robert D. Welden is a graduate of the University of Washington, (B.A. 1967, J.D. 1970). Upon graduation, he practiced in Seattle with the law firm Smith, Welden, Kaplan, Young and Withey (1970–1972) and was in solo practice until 1976. He was staff attorney with the Seattle Indian Center Legal Services (1976), and the Seattle-King County Public Defender (1976–1981). In 1981 he became a staff attorney and discipline counsel for the Washington State Bar Association, and became General Counsel in 1988. He is the administrator for the WSBA Lawyers' Fund for Client Protection, and served as reporter for the WSBA Committee to Define the Practice of Law (1998–2001) and the WSBA Future of the Legal Profession Study Group (2000–2001). He served as the first administrator of the Washington Practice of Law Board (2002–2004). He was vice-president, Western Region, of the National Client Protection Organization (1998-2001), and has served in various capacities with the American Bar Association: Standing Committee on Client Protection (member, 2001–2007; chairperson 2003-2006); Advisory Commission on Lawyers' Funds for Client Protection (member, 1998–2001; chairperson 1999-2001); Access to Legal Services Committee (member, 2002); Task Force on the Model Definition of the Practice of Law (member, 2002-2003); Coordinating Council for the Center for Professional Responsibility (member 2003–2006); Consortium on Legal Services and the Public (member 2003–2004). He is a Fellow of the American Bar Foundation and a member of the Association of Professional Responsibility Lawyers.

W. Bradley Wendel is Professor of Law at Cornell Law School, where he teaches professional responsibility, torts, and the theory of legal ethics. He is the author of a student textbook, Professional Responsibility: Examples and Explanations, and co-editor (with Susan Martyn and Larry Fox) of a rules supplement, The Law Governing Lawyers, both published by Aspen. Prior to joining the Cornell faculty, he taught at Washington and Lee Law School, was a litigation associate at a large law firm in Seattle, and clerked for Judge Andrew J. Kleinfeld on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit.

Charles W. Wolfram is the Charles Frank Reavis Sr. Professor Emeritus and during 1998-99 was the Interim Dean at the Cornell Law School. Professor Wolfram now lives in Berkeley California. He is the author of the West Publishing treatise Modern Legal Ethics and was the chief reporter for the American Law Institute's Restatement of the Law Governing Lawyers. He has also written many other monographs, book chapters, and articles and has spoken widely before lawyer, law student, judicial and non-lawyer audiences on the ethics of lawyers and judges. Professor Wolfram continues to consult and appear as an expert witness in cases involving legal malpractice, lawyer disqualification, lawyer discipline, lawyer crimes, legal fees, judicial ethics, and similar issues.

Stephen E. Young is a research librarian at The Catholic University of America School of Law's Kathryn J. DuFour Law Library in Washington, D.C. Prior to working at Catholic University he spent many years at the University of Texas School of Law's Tarlton Law Library. Over the years Steve has taught a variety of introductory and advanced legal research classes, and he has spoken on a number of occasions at national conferences. Steve has published law review articles, book chapters, and a variety of online articles, primarily in the area of United Kingdom legal research. He is also the compiler of The Posse Comitatus Act of 1878: A Documentary History (W.S. Hein, 2003), and the co-editor of Conference on the Global Responsibility of Law Librarians: Proceedings (Rothman, 1990). Steve obtained his B.A. from the University of Kent at Canterbury in England, and his Master's in Library Science from Indiana University, Bloomington. He has been a member of the American Association of Law Libraries since 1986.