Part I: The Salvation Army Promise Model

A review of the Salvation Army Promise Model (Partnership to Rescue our Minors from Sexual Exploitation) that is conducted in collaboration with the Chicago, IL Juvenile Court of Cook County. In addition, the discussion will include activities on behalf of the Salvation Army to combat human trafficking on a National basis and training methods developed accordingly.

Panelists: Dr. Michael A. Smith, National Consultant for Trafficking Survivor Services, The Salvation Army, Alexandria, VA

Part II: Circuit Court of Cook County Alternatives To Secure Detention

A discussion about the Circuit Court of Cook County – Juvenile Justice Division which has received national recognition for its innovative approach to safely reducing chronic overcrowding in secure detention without compromising public safety. The court has developed a myriad of community-based programs that are responsive to the risk and treatment needs posed by court involved minors. The programs are cost effective and promote pro-social outcomes for multiple high-risk populations. In response to the mental health issues that challenge a large percentage of minors, the court has implemented an effective community-based continuum of clinical services that is being replicated nationally. The court regularly hosts delegations from across the U.S. to exam these community-based court alternative programs.

Panelists: Michael J. Rohan, Director, Juvenile Probation & Court Services, Chicago, IL; Carmen Casas, Deputy Chief Probation Officer, Juvenile Detention Alternatives Initiative Coordinator, Chicago, IL; Arnie Salazar, Deputy Chief Probation Officer, Detention Alternatives Division, Chicago, IL; Ore Jones,

III, Evening Reporting Center Supervisor, Detention Alternatives Division, Chicago, IL
