São Paulo at night

Few regions in the world undergo such profound and constant change as Latin America. The Section of International Law Latin American & Caribbean Committee will be holding their second annual conference abroad this year in Sao Paulo, Brazil on May 8-9, 2008. This program will focus on various legal aspects, which international practitioners need to know and understand when dealing in the region. Leading practitioners from throughout the Americas will examine foreign investment, trade, antitrust, investor-state arbitration, natural resources and other timely topics of interest. We hope you will be able to join us!
