

Business Law Reform in Emerging Markets: Measuring and Promoting Success in the Rule of Law

Claudia Dumas
Project Director, World Justice Product
American Bar Association
740 15th Street NW
Washington, DC 20005

Claudia Dumas is the Director of the World Justice Project. Ms. Dumas oversees all aspects of the Project, including the multidisciplinary outreach meetings, research papers, rule of law index, World Justice Forum, and follow-on initiatives.

Ms. Dumas has a career in both international development and as a corporate lawyer. Prior to joining the World Justice Project, Ms. Dumas spent seven years as the Senior Rule of Law Advisor with USAID's Bureau for Europe and Eurasia in Washington, D.C. In that capacity, Ms. Dumas supervised 16 USAID field offices' structuring and execution of country strategies and programs to implement legal system, commercial law and anti-corruption reforms. Ms. Dumas has spent substantial time working outside the United States, and has developed and integrated legal system, commercial law and anti-corruption efforts into a broad range of initiatives. She has worked closely with governmental and non-governmental bodies seeking to identify and implement rule of law reforms, including the OECD and the World Bank.

Ms. Dumas has practiced commercial and international finance law with the law firm of Shearman & Sterling, IBM and Citibank, N.A. She has structured and negotiated numerous complex transactions in a wide range of industries, including acquisition financings, highly leveraged financings, project finance, equipment leases, asset divestitures, workouts, and restructurings.

Ms. Dumas received her A.B. in Economics from Wellesley College in 1981 and her J.D. from Cornell Law School in 1984, where she was senior editor of the Cornell International Law Journal.