

Business Law Reform in Emerging Markets: Measuring and Promoting Success in the Rule Of Law

Carol M. Mates

Carol Mates is a recognized expert in legal aspects of project and corporate finance in emerging markets. She has over thirty years' experience in the practice of business and financial law, with an emphasis on international finance.

Carol is Principal Counsel in the Legal Department of the International Finance Corporation (IFC) in Washington, D.C., an international, intergovernmental financial organization that is the private sector affiliate of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development (World Bank). She has been actively involved in legal and policy aspects of private sector finance in Latin America for the last several years, including private infrastructure projects, private equity funds and corporate restructurings.

Prior to her position at IFC, Carol worked in the private sector in New York City and Boston.

Ms. Mates is a frequent speaker on project finance and private sector infrastructure financing. She is active in professional associations, including leadership positions with the American Bar Association's Section of International Law and Practice and is a member of the Latin American Law Initiative Council. She also has taught in the graduate legal programs of the Boston University School of Law-Morin Banking Law Center and the Georgetown University Law Center.

Ms. Mates received an A.B. from Barnard College and a J.D. from Columbia Law School. She is admitted to the bars of the State of New York and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.