

A Trade Lawyer's Guide to the New UNCITRAL Convention Governing Carriage of Goods by Sea

Steven Snell

A member of the bar of the state of New York, Steven L. Snell has practiced and published in the fields of maritime law, antitrust, and transnational commercial litigation and arbitration. After completing undergraduate and graduate studies at Johns Hopkins University, he received the degree of Juris Doctor from Northwestern University School of Law and the degrees of Master of Laws and Doctor of Juridical Science from New York University School of Law.

Dr. Snell currently serves as the Co-Chair of the International Transportation Committee of the A.B.A.'s Section of International Law. He is also an active member of the Selden Society and of the Maritime Law Association of the United States, for which he serves on both the Carriage of Goods Committee and the Committee on Uniformity of Maritime Law. His most recent publication, "Courts of Admiralty and the Common Law: Origins of the American Experiment in Concurrent Jurisdiction" was released by Carolina Academic Press in 2007.

For the past year, Dr. Snell has been visiting faculty in Political Science at Johns Hopkins University as well as at The Washington College of Law of American University, where he teaches admiralty law.