UPDATE: ABA Bricks, Bytes and Continuous
Renovation Conference

From: Rayman L. Solomon, Chair, Law School Facilities Committee
Christopher Simoni, Vice-Chair, Law School Facilities Committee

Date: November 20, 2008

After extensive conversations between the Law School Facilities Committee and the Office of the Consultant to the Section of Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar, a decision was made to postpone the 2009 ABA Bricks, Bytes, and Continuous Renovation Conference scheduled for March 12 – 14, 2009 in Philadelphia. Given the economic downturn, we strongly believe these conditions will have a serious impact on attendance. The new date for the conference is March 10-12, 2010 in Philadelphia.

In order to provide assistance to those who wish to consult with others about building projects before the conference in 2010, we will endeavor over the next several months to compile and post on the Section's website; www.abanet.org/legaled a list of current or recently completed building projects that will include contact information from a person at each school who can provide detailed information.

We regret that the Conference will be delayed, but we know that it will be an informative and important event in 2010 that we hope will be well-attended.

Sincerely,

Rayman L. Solomon
