The American Bar Association Family Legal Guide was written by a wide range of legal experts, including lawyers, law professors, professors from other university disciplines, and legal journalists. The authors and their professional titles and affiliations are listed below by chapter.

The material in each chapter has also been reviewed by various experts. They include the chairpersons and members of American Bar Association (ABA) committees specializing in important legal areas, as well as law professors, university professors, ABA staff, and others with appropriate expertise. These people volunteered their time to review chapters. You will find each of them listed below by chapters.

At the ABA, assigning and reviewing copy was the responsibility of Charles White, Publications Director of the Public Education Division. Providing considerable assistance were Jane Moisant, Charles F. Williams, L. Anita Richardson, and May Nash of the division staff.
