

Gabrielle Buckley

Gabrielle M. Buckley joined the Chicago office of Vedder Price in 2001 as a shareholder in the Corporate Practice Area. Ms. Buckley counsels U.S. and foreign-based companies with regard to employment-related immigration laws. She advises employers as to immigration law issues arising in corporate mergers, acquisitions, divestitures and other forms of corporate reorganization and advises employers regarding hiring and compliance issues.

Ms. Buckley presently serves on the American Bar Association's 13-member Commission on Immigration Policy, and is the former co-chair of the Immigration & Nationality Committee of the American Bar Association's Section of International Law and Practice. She is the immediate past Chair of the Chicago Bar Association's International and Foreign Law Committee. She is a frequent speaker on business immigration and international law matters, and is an Adjunct Professor at the John Marshall Law School.