Providing Persons with Disabilities and the Elderly with Equal Access to Justice

Friday, December 5, 2008

8:30 am - 5:00 pm

Stetson University College of Law

Gulfport, Florida

Presented by the ABA/TIPS General Committee on Animal Law, TIPS Standing Committee on Diversity in the Profession, and Stetson University College of Law, along with the TIPS General Committees of Health and Disability Insurance Law, Law Practice Management, and Government Law; ABA Government and Public Sector Lawyers Division; ABA Judicial Division; ABA Senior Lawyers Division; ABA Criminal Justice Section; ABA Section of Real Property, Trust and Estate Law; ABA Commission on Mental and Physical Disability Law; ABA Commission on Law and Aging; and the National Academy of Elder Law Attorneys

Program Description

The conference will focus on providing witnesses, parties, jurors and attorneys who have a disability or are elderly (including those accompanied by service or emotional support animals) with equal access to justice. The panelists will include private attorneys, prosecutors, judges, architects, court administrators, trial consultants and experts in technology, bringing their diverse perspectives to address emerging issues on this topic and to propose solutions. The issues discussed at the conference can arise in civil and criminal matters.

The conference will be held in the William R. Eleazer Courtroom at Stetson University College of Law. This courtroom, dedicated in September 2005, is the first user-friendly courtroom for the elderly and persons with disabilities.
